

David Mills

Profile

David Mills is a commercial sales and leasing agent with over 13 years experience in the property industry.

David began his property career in London in 2008, working for a national estate agency group in residential leasing. He went on to become a Partner at London's best independent residential agency and a Director at Jones Lang Lasalle, running his own office in Chelsea.

During 10 years in the capital, David worked in some of the most prestigious postcodes representing London's largest estates and family offices. After making the permanent move back to Perth in late 2017, he shifted his focus to commercial property and has since gained considerable experience in sales and leasing across office and industrial asset classes.

David is known as a professional and proactive agent with a very personal approach. He prides himself on his client care, communication skills, negotiation skills and unparalleled drive to deliver high standards of work.

Having lived in five countries and travelled extensively, David has a genuine understanding of how to communicate with and relate to people from all walks of life. These "people skills" have been the key to his success to date and are what set him apart in the industry.
